

Help Fight Blood Cancer!

Cells for Change is a School & Youth campaign that has been designed so schools can help the environment and support LLS's mission: to cure blood cancers and improve the quality of life for patients and their families.

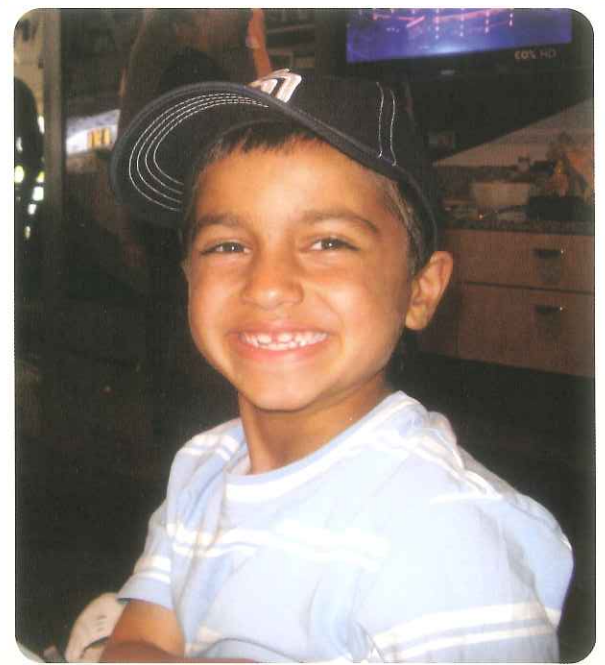

Your school can help find a cure by collecting old cell phones. Every phone you collect goes to support the fight against blood cancer.

By the end of this year, there will be approximately 550 million unused mobile and wireless phones stockpiled in the United States awaiting proper disposal. That number is expected to grow 175 million devices a year.

Robert is a local San Diegan who was diagnosed with leukemia in February 2010. He is 7-years-old and will go through treatment for the next three years. He enjoys playing soccer, hip hop dance and loves to eat Cheez-Its.
